Project Muse is a collection of over 300 high quality humanities, arts, and social science journals available online.

From the main BHSU homepage at www.bhsu.edu click on the “Popular Links” link at the top of the page and then click on the Library icon.

On the library homepage under the left column, “Browse Databases” you will see the link View All, click on this link.

You will now need to scroll down the page to “Project Muse” and click on the title.

On the Project Muse Home Page notice the two search tabs: “Article Search” and “Browse Search.” You can also search articles by entering search terms in the “Article Search” box found on the upper right side of the screen.

In the center of the home page notice the group of journals recently added to Project Muse.

Two links that are also worth mentioning are the “About Muse Link” which will provide you with background information about this database, and “Tools and Resources” which will enhance your research – check them out!!!

Let’s click on the “Tools and Resources Link.” There you will see the list complete with links.

OK let’s click on the “Article Search Tab.” I am going to put my search terms in the “Search Box.” Notice the different ways you can search; I am going to leave it at “all fields with text.”

Notice the drop down box that allows for Boolean searching.

If we scroll down a bit further you can see additional searching options (PAUSE)

Today we are going to leave everything open and enter the terms: “Darfur” on the first line and “Children” on the second line, then click search.

On the next page you will see the results list. You can view the article in either HTML or PDF formats. You can also browse subject headings by clicking on a particular subject.

You can mark some of the articles by checking the tiny box next to the article’s title.

I am going to go ahead and mark a few, then I am going to check on the “saved marked records” icon.

To view your marked records click on the “view saved results” icon. Then you have the option to export your results list.
Now let's click on the “Browse Journals” tab. You can see the list of journals contained within Project Muse is organized alphabetically.

You can scroll down to view the list or jump to a particular letter of the alphabet. Let's scroll down and choose the title “Chaucer Review.” Notice the coverage at the right of the title.

I am going to click on the link. On the next page you will see some information about the journal followed by links to the issues.

To browse a particular issue simply click on the link and you will be directed to that issue.

Take some time to explore this exciting database…
